

4 Exciting New Courses

GEG Bulletin
February 25, 2010

Favorite Sustainable Growers,

Here comes the returning sunlight and the dawn of a new growing season. As you may be noticing, there is an amazing surge of interest in local food and food-growing is welling up! I have big news to share about that.

Mat-Su College is offering 4 new courses this spring and summer:

Sustainable Agriculture Series

--Gardening

--Local Food Issues

-- Gardening for Market

--Small Livestock

Non-credit. Low cost. Practical.

So if you are eager to...

- Expand your gardening and farming prowess,
- Learn more about what “local food” really means for you,
- Earn income by market gardening, or
- Raise some small livestock,

...here are golden fresh opportunities. Please see the attached flyer for dates, times, and descriptions. You can also see information at <http://www.matsu.alaska.edu/news.htm>

As always, let me know if you want off this list.

Order those seeds, and blessings to you in your spring preparations,
Ellen Vande Visse